1.6 Concepts and definitions

The statistics of pre-primary education collects, processes, and publishes data on the number and capacity of preschool institutions, number of educational groups, number of children in total and gender, age, according to the length of stay, and number of employees who implement programs of preschool education and upbringing. Pre-primary education and education forms a part of a unique educational system. Pre-primary education and education provides education and education of children, takes care of children and provides assistance to parents in improving the quality of life of families and children. Pre-primary education and education includes children until they enter elementary school. Pre-primary education and education depending on the age of the child, are done in nurseries and kindergartens.

Children under three years of age live in the nursery, and in kindergartens, children from three years of age to their primary school.

Education programme is the most widely defined programme orientation for the performance of educational work.

Educational group is the composition of children structured by age, pedagogical norms and numbers.

Educational unit is a part of a pre-primary institution outside the headquarters of an institution that includes one or more educational groups.

Publicly available programme means a programme that is issued or approved by a competent state authority.

Private institutions are institutions of pre-primary education and education established by a legal or natural person.

Private educator is a teacher of pre-primary education engaged in the need to implement basic program requirements with a child in the family.

Children from the most vulnerable groups of the population are: children with disabilities and developmental difficulties, children with difficulties caused by social, linguistic and cultural obstacles.
